Stage Layout

Important:

The band is using their own monitoring system and thus has to connect their mixer to the microphones via a passive splitter.

The respective vocalists use their own microphones (Audix OM7 for main vocals and Shure PGA58 for backings).

Both guitarists and the bassist are using modelers with a pre-designed cab-simulation, thus their signals need to be routed separately (in case of other bands playing through regular cabinets). When the PA system in the venue is designed to use with vocals only, the guitarists are able to play via regular cabinets. Please inform the band prior in this case.

The venue engineer can ask the vocalist about further information prior to the show.
