

Moglebaum

Moglebaum is a band consisting of 5 musicians. Everything has started some years ago as a one-man-project from the 22-year-old student of music and producer of Moglebaum, Simon Ebener-Holscher. Soon after, other musicians joined the band. Since then the electronic compositions were mixed with acoustic instruments. This mix of genres defines the live-character of Moglebaum, composed of beat-based music and acoustic orchestration.

Playful computer-beats, vocal-samples and synthesizer-sounds (Alessandro Fáma & Simon Ebener-Holscher) meet soulful vocals (Franziska Geiß), violin and loop-station (Tonio Geugelin) and saxophone (Jonas Geyersberger).

The music is driving but melancholic, surprising but produced with a passion for detail. Most of the samples are self-made, with the help of field recording of coffee machines, shopping bags or cactuses.

Bands who influenced Moglebaum's sound might be "Bonobo", as well as "Flume", "Caribou" and "Sohn".

The name of the band has its origin in the Japanese anime "Pokémon". The fascination for this special fantasy world has initiated the idea for "Moglebaum".

We are looking forward to all upcoming live-concerts in clubs or on festivals!
