Hit the synth-punk disco with MINOH's first official single, Million Miles

After releasing a rough demo version of Million Miles in their Disco Punk EP in January, Germany's pioneering Korean-German synth-punk duo, MINOH, is set to launch the official recording of their rave single on the 30th of June.

With synths that oscillate in the same frenetically exhilarant vein as She Past Away, rapturously infectious vox that arrest while taking no prisoners and surpassing what you've grown accustomed to from Birthday Massacre and Siouxsie and the Banshees, Million Miles allows you to ride the crux of new wave while mainlining the punk adrenaline of New Model Army.

MINOH Said:

We seek to captivate with our unmistakable soundscapes by combining distorted baritone guitar, fuzzy bass, and pulsating disco rhythms fuelled by energetic synths to create an atmospheric sonic world which oscillates between rebellious punk and danceable new wave.

Amelia Vandergast, the Executive Editor at A&R Factory said:

While I scarcely imagined there was any room to manoeuvre fresh ingenuity into the 80s new wave arena, MINOH brought the earworm appeal of NENA, the 'decadence' of Poison Ivy and guitars that will make you question the merit of Turn on the Bright Lights.

About the artist

MINOH is a Korean-German synth-punk duo based in Aachen, Germany comprising Jamin on vocals and guitars and Guido on vocals and bass. Though the project may be young, both artists have been cutting their teeth in punk, new wave, hardcore and metal bands for the past 20 years.

What started as a solo project in Jamin's home studio during the pandemic became a duo when her boyfriend, Guido, joined her on bass and rearranged her songs into disco-punk versions after a local punk band was searching for a support band.

Since then, MINOH has become well-known in the touring circuits in Aachen and Belgium as they record and prepare for the launch of their debut album. The first release was a demo EP released on Bandcamp, which received rave reviews from Ox- Magazine.

Following the release of the final mix of Million Miles, MINOH plans to release a string of singles throughout the year ahead of their debut LP.
