It's been nearly two years since we've stumbled upon Premortal Breath. Their sound is a hybrid of hard rock, new age metal and alternative. Their sound continues to grow - stronger production, instrumentation and lyrical content. Lead vocalist soars higher on some of their new works, drawing many of their records more eclectic. His vocal tone is grittier and exhibits more emotion. This ensemble has become more sophisticated and showcases a more cohesive, polished attack on their craftsmanship. At this tempo, the group will find themselves playing at bigger venues, including music festivals. In a time of extreme digitization, their emerging tunes, could hit a broader audience at a much faster speed. Their overall packaging is full as well: mobile official site, music offered on a wider array of platforms (Facebook, SoundCloud + ReverbNation) with more provocative assets. The sky is the boundary for this German phenomenon of five. Their immense talent and innovation has won them a top slot on this week's #360WatchList.
