BIOGRAPHY:

There will be Lions is a band project born from the disintegration of two bands. Out of the ashes came something powerful and intent on making a mark in the Indie Music Scene. And There will be Lions are intent on doing just that. Stylistically, the music is Indie, but not quite as you know it. It's the Indie formally known as Prince. It's casual Indie. The ability of the band to accommodate each member's personal flair and approach to song writing creates ever changing soundscapes where music is king. There will be Lions is a band focused on one thing, no ego's, no plans of world domination and destruction to get the way, they just want to create truly great music and do it in style. From bone crunching guitar riffs to funky moog licks, to big break beats to throbbing walls of bass, There will be Lions are a truly ingenious bunch that simply want to blow you away.

La Bateria, Chris Barca (IT) also doubles as cook on the Lions excursions, while Bass God, Michael Bietenhader (CH) gently strums an acoustic guitar whenever the band takes a break. Keymaster Bryan Smith (SA) is inevitably patching cables or playing with a new device in his down-time and Vocalist and Guitarist Pat Hargreaves (NZ) just sits and ponders it all.
